

Book I.

Postulates

I.

Let it be granted that a straight line may be drawn from any one point to any other point.

II.

Let it be granted that a finite straight line may be produced to any length in a straight line.

III.

Let it be granted that a circle may be described with any centre at any distance from that centre.